Vendor Directory

This Vendor Directory lists more than 1800 microcomputer hardware, software, and service companies together with their main product lines and a brief summary of corporate statistics. The corporate statistics include: company ad- dress, telephone number, year founded, approximate number of employees, and approximate gross sales. The format of the directory allows for quick access either by company or by product class.

VENDOR DIRECTORY FEATURES

The product classes include the following:

HARDWARE PRODUCTS

A series of 9 hardware product types are indicated in this cate- gory. A dot (●) under a heading indicates that a vendor is either a manufacturer, a distributor, or a retail seller of that product.

Microcomputer Systems ● small computing systems consisting of hardware and software and centered around a single semicon- ductor microprocessor chip. Combined with memory, storage, printers, and terminals/monitors, these systems can range in price from less than $1,600 to over $40,000.

Hard Disks ● include sealed disk drives using rigid media and having a typical storage capacity of between 5 and 40 million characters or bytes of data.

Floppy Disks ● specify drives with semi-rigid removable media having storage capacities from about 100,000 characters to 1,200,000 characters of data. The popular media sizes are 3.5, 5.25, or 8 inches.

Printers ● include hard copy devices with dot matrix, daisy wheel/ thimble, ink jet, thermal, or electrosensitive technologies that pro- duce alphanumeric characters on paper or produce a combina- tion of alphanumeric characters and graphics.

Terminals/Monitors ● describe display devices utilizing cathode- ray tubes, liquid crystal displays or plasma technology.

Communications Equipment ● includes modems, multiplexers, protocol converters, and other devices that allow data communi- cation with other computers through telephone lines, dedicated lines, networks, hard-wire, or other means.

Graphics Equipment ● lists input and output devices which allow charts, graphs, and other visual representations of information from a computer onto a screen or hard copy. Included in this category are digitizers, mouse devices, plotters, graphics boards, and other devices.

Memory Expansion ● indicates chips, boards and other products that can be inserted into the main computer or into a separate box to increase the random access memory of a microcomputer.

Peripheral Controllers ● include devices used to control hard and floppy disk drives, printers, plotters, or other peripherals; also included are interface boards.

SYSTEM COMPATIBILITY

System compatibility refers to the characteristics by which one system can accept and process data prepared by another ma- chine without conversion or code modification. There are degrees of screen, plug, software and other hardware compatibility; this directory does not indicate to what extent the system is compati- ble, but only that the vendor claims some compatibility. Two of the most common vendors are listed because of space constraints. If no dot appears in this section it does not necessarily imply that no compatibility exists, but rather that either none was indicated by the vendor or that the system is compatible with a microcom- puter other than IBM or Apple.

IBM PC ● a dot in this column indicates that the vendor claims compatibility with the IBM PC.

Apple ● a dot in this column indicates that the vendor claims compatibility with an Apple system.

OPERATING SYSTEM COMPATIBILITY

Operating system compatibility refers to the ability of a microcom- puter to run or execute programs written under a specific oper- ating system. While this compatibility extends to the operating system, this should not imply that there is disk format compatibility or that all programs written under the operating system in ques- tion would have screen compatibility. If no dot appears in this section it does not necessarily imply that no operating system compatibility exists, but rather that either none was indicated by the vendor, or that the product might be compatible with an unlisted operating system.

CP/M ● a dot in this column indicates that the vendor claims operating system compatibility with some version of 8-bit CP/M.

MP/M ● a dot in this column indicates that the vendor claims operating system compatibility with MP/M.

CP/M-86 ● a dot in this column indicates that the vendor claims operating system compatibility with CP/M-86.

MP/M-86 ● a dot in this column indicates that the vendor claims operating system compatibility with MP/M-86.

MS-DOS ● a dot in this column indicates that the vendor claims system compatibility with MS-DOS.

SOFTWARE PRODUCTS

A series of 9 software product types are indicated in this category. A dot (●) under a heading indicates that a vendor is either a developer, a distributor, or a retail seller of that product. If the package provides several modules, i.e. if the package has inte- grated functions, a dot is placed under the heading corresponding to each module and a clarification is made in the Comments section.

Operating System & Enhancements ● specifies software that manages hardware and logical devices of a system, peripheral drivers, general system utilities, or input/output routines.

Data Management ● includes packages designed to create and manipulate data files and to present selected groups of data from those files; this section includes data entry packages.

Communications ● lists packages that allow a microcomputer to emulate a terminal, to communicate with databases, larger com- puters, or other microcomputers, or to transfer files and other data between computers.

Vendor Directory

Language Processors ● include assemblers, interpreters, and compiler languages.

Program Support ● includes programming aids and system development aids.

Utilities ● include librarians, report generators, and spoolers.

Spreadsheets/Financial Planning ● indicate electronic spreadsheets, financial planning and modeling packages, and spreadsheet templates.

Word Processing/Office Automation ● consists of word processing programs, word processing enhancements, spelling checkers, mail list modules, grammar checkers, electronic mail programs, and appointment calendars and schedule programs.

Graphics ● includes graphics software for screen graphics, drawing, printer/plotter graphics, graphics utilities and routines, graphics terminal simulators, and graphic extensions to spreadsheets and data management packages.

Other ● designates industry specific packages, accounting systems, and packages not covered elsewhere in the survey; the nature of the package is listed in the Comments section.

VENDOR STATUS

Four types of vendors are indicated in this survey. The types include:

Hardware Manufacturer ● refers to manufacturers of computers, peripherals, expansion boards, or related hardware.

Distributor ● includes companies that distribute hardware and/or software to retail dealers who, in turn, sell to the end user.

Retailer ● indicates businesses that sell to the end user.

Software Developer ● lists vendors that develop or publish microcomputer software.

COMMENTS

This section includes comments on software not listed in the Software Products section of this Survey, plus accessories such as furniture, supplies, power control devices, storage and security equipment; and service related information such as timesharing, consultants, maintenance, etc.
